MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A REMARKABLE MAN. Mr. Josiah Goodwin, whose death occurred on Sunday last, in Joppa, Mass., at the age of 77, may well be called a remarkable man .-

The Newburyport Herald, says:-"In his youth he was considered the strong est man in Joppa. Many feats of strength are related, of him, swinging a barrel of flour by each arm, jumping a distance of 12 feet, and many similar feats of strength. He had a most singular attachment for home. It may be said that he never lost sight of the smoke that curled from his own chimney. He never was out of the county, and but once out of this town, when he visited a training at Boxford, a distance of ten miles, which was the greatest journey he ever undertook. From his residence to our market is about a mile, but he seldom came more than once a year, and then preferred to row his boat up the river rather than to walk. Believing with Peter Pindar.

"Wedlock's a saucy, sad, familiar state, Where folks are very apt to scold and hate," he never ventured to enter the chains of Hymen and lived a life of single blessedness. He never had a sick day till his last sickness. He was never heard to utter a profane word or one unbecoming to a gentleman. He never used intoxicating drinks or played a game of cards. He never had a case in court, and was never in one, either as a juror, witnessor spectator. He never rode upon a steamboat or railroad, and notwithstanding for 77 years he lived in the same locality, he was scarcely known out of his own ward. Being conscientiously honest from principle, he was governed in his intercourse with mankind by motives of justice and purposes to do right. He was strict of integrity, firm in his conviction of truth, and faithful to all trusts committed to his charge. In his social relations he was good natured, urbane and kind-gaining, therefore, in connection with a just consideration of his examplary character in other respects, the esteem of all with whom he came in contact. He never made a public profes-sion of religion but he lived and died a Chris-

THE "TRY COMPANY." A gentleman who was riding in the cars. noticed a bright little fellow between five and six years of age, sitting with his father and mother, and engaged in the attempt to loose the kot in the string that bound a small par-cel. The knot had become well compacted, and the child's tiny fingers seemed to make no impression thereon. The patient earnestness of the little fellow was contrasted with the apparent indifference of his parents, who looked on, but made no attempt to assist him .-At last, the gentleman, whose sympathies with children were warm, could bear the sight no longer; so, partly to help the child, and partly to rebuke the parents, he took out his knife, and, handing it the boy, said, "Here my little fellow, try the virtue of sharp blade. You can't untie the knot!" Something to his surprise, the knife was not taken; but instead, the child answered with a smile: "Please sir, father don't allow me to say I can't. I belong to the "Try Company.
